

"God bless each of you."

Lrije, is a 40-year-old war widow from Kosovo. She writes, "In 1987, I married Xhavit and we were blessed with five children. We had a good life with our own house, some land, three cows, a tractor and a car.

"When the war began, we escaped to my parent's village. My husband was killed in the war and the soldiers entered our farm, burned our house, killed our three cows, and destroyed our tractor and car.

"Today, I am doing well. Help came from the LWF in reconstructing my house. The LWF gave my family 10 sheep to raise for the wool. The LWF started a Women's Center in our village. They taught us to weave. With three other women I make wool carpets for our Kosovo market and earn a regular income to support my family. I am so grateful. God bless each of you."

At the end of the Kosovo war in 1999, almost one million Kosovar Albanians returned to destroyed homes and farms. Gifts to the ELCA World Hunger Appeal help the Lutheran World Federation serve as the lead agency in the region. The LWF provided resources for 5,400 families to repair or reconstruct their homes. The LWF continues work in revitalizing the economic and social life of communities through small-scale economic enterprises in village agriculture.

"God bless each of you."

Lrije, is a 40-year-old war widow from Kosovo. She writes, "In 1987, I married Xhavit and we were blessed with five children. We had a good life with our own house, some land, three cows, a tractor and a car.

"When the war began, we escaped to my parent's village. My husband was killed in the war and the soldiers entered our farm, burned our house, killed our three cows, and destroyed our tractor and car.

"Today, I am doing well. Help came from the LWF in reconstructing my house. The LWF gave my family 10 sheep to raise for the wool. The LWF started a Women's Center in our village. They taught us to weave. With three other women I make wool carpets for our Kosovo market and earn a regular income to support my family. I am so grateful. God bless each of you."

At the end of the Kosovo war in 1999, almost one million Kosovar Albanians returned to destroyed homes and farms. Gifts to the ELCA World Hunger Appeal help the Lutheran World Federation serve as the lead agency in the region. The LWF provided resources for 5,400 families to repair or reconstruct their homes. The LWF continues work in revitalizing the economic and social life of communities through small-scale economic enterprises in village agriculture.

